WANO Moscow Centre with the assistance of the Tianwan NPP (Jiangsu Nuclear Power Corporation) are preparing an International Conference on experience and knowledge exchange for nuclear power units which are being planned, constructed or preparing for commissioning.

A rapidly changing worldwide nuclear landscape, active development of nuclear energy in many regions, and emergence of companies choosing nuclear power for the first time contribute to the appearance of new challenges and tasks related to the safe use of nuclear energy. New approaches are required for solving emerging issues. One of such approaches is WANO topical conferences aiming at the improvement of nuclear safety by enhancing international cooperation and exchange of operating experience within the industry.

The objective of the current conference is to share effective international operating experience among operating organizations and new entrants in the field of new units' start-up focusing on the challenges related to nuclear safety culture, licensing, commissioning, preparation for a successful startup, personnel training and knowledge transfer.

Leaders and experts from WANO member organizations and nuclear power plants who have practical experience in commissioning of new nuclear power units are invited to the Conference along with personnel from stations being built. Despite the fact that the conference is primarily arranged for WANO members, operating organizations working in the sphere of nuclear energy that are not yet WANO members are also welcome.

The topics for the Conference are as follows:

- WANO support for new units

- Personnel training
- Operating experience and lessons learned at the stage of licensing, construction and commissioning
